DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-6, 11-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Hino et al (US 6,002,906).

For claim 1, which is representative of claim 11, Hino discloses An image reading device for reading documents to be processed continuously and outputting a plurality of image information, said image reading device comprising: a continuous reading controller switch for receiving continuous instructions and outputting a control signal to control the continuous reading and outputting operations of said image reading device (Col 6 Lines 24-29); and a control unit for controlling said image reading device and receiving said control signal to implement the continuous reading and outputting operations of said image reading device (Fig 1; Col 9 Lines 1-3).

For claim 2, which is representative of claim 12, Hino teaches a time adjuster to adjust the time period between two adjacent operations of image reading (Col 9 Lines 1-3).

Art Unit: 2622

Regarding claim 3, which is representative of claim 13, Hino teaches wherein said time adjuster further comprises a speedup button and a slowdown button to decrease and increase the time period respectively (Col 8 Line 66-Col 9 Line 3)

For claim 4, which is representative of claim 14, Hino teaches wherein, said time adjuster further comprises a rotator to adjust the time period (Col 9 Lines 4-15).

Considering claim 5, which is representative of claim 15, Hino discloses further comprising a detector for outputting a reading signal to said control unit to initiate the reading operation of said image reading device when no action within a predetermined period after the scanned page is turned over is detected (Col 10 Lines 28-34).

Regarding claim 6, which is representative of claim 16, Hino discloses further comprising a plane for loading the document to be processed, said detector being positioned under said plane (Fig 1).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 7,17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hino et al (US 6,002,906) in view of Sawase et al (US 5,414,533).

Hino discloses the image reading device as described above.

Hino does not disclose expressly an audio-receiver for receiving the audio signal and outputting a reading signal to said control unit to control the reading operation of said image reading device.

Sawase discloses an audio-receiver for receiving the audio signal and outputting a reading signal to said control unit to control the reading operation of said image reading device (Col 5 Lines 17-24).

Hino & Sawase are combinable because they are from the same field of endeavor.

At the time of the invention, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to combine Hino with Sawase.

The suggestion/motivation for doing so would have been control the reading operation via audio means.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to combine Sawase with Hino to obtain the invention as specified in claims 7,17.

5. Claims 8,18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hino et al (US 6,002,906) in view of Nagano et al (US 4,809,803).

Hino discloses the image reading device as discussed above.

Hino does not disclose expressly a stepping controller, wherein the user steps said stepping-controller to output a reading signal to said control unit for controlling the reading operation of said image reading device.

Nagano discloses a stepping controller, wherein the user steps said stepping-controller to output a reading signal to said control unit for controlling the reading operation of said image reading device (Col 3 Lines 46-51).

Hino & Nagano are combinable because they are from image reading devices.

At the time of the invention, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to combine Hino with Nagano.

The suggestion/motivation for doing so would have been to control the original.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to combine Nagano with Hino to obtain the invention as specified in claims 8,18.

6. Claims 9,19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hino et al (US 6,002,906) in view of Okisu et al (US 5,159,187).

Hino discloses the image reading device as described above.

Hino does not disclose expressly an indicator for informing the user to turn over the page.

Okisu discloses an indicator for informing the user to turn over the page (Col 6 Lines 60-66).

Hino & Okisu are combinable because they are from the same field of endeavor.

At the time of the invention, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to combine Hino with Okisu.

The suggestion/motivation for doing so would have been to inform the user when to turn the page over.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to combine Okisu with Hino to obtain the invention as specified in claims above.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

7. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

8. Claims 7,17 recite the limitation "the audio signal" in Page 9 Line 4 and Page 10. Line 14. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

9. Claims 10, 20 recite the limitation "the group" in Line 13 Page 9 and Line 2 Page

11. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.
